Patricia Rose has overall responsibility for the activities of Penn’s Career Services office with 26 staff members, and directly supervises six senior associate directors and two administrative support staff. Penn’s Career Services helps Penn students, alumni, and post-doctoral trainees define and achieve their career goals through counseling, programs, and other resources.

Here’s what Patricia’s staff said about working with her:

• Pat is able to give direction as needed, but has an empowering style of supervision that allows me space to be innovative in creating and enhancing our programs and services.

• She sets a wonderful tone of optimism, energy, and team spirit in the office that has built a terrific, lively, collaborative, and productive sense of community at work.

• She makes each and every one of us in the office feel unique and valued for our contributions. She is a role model and incredible leader both in our office and in the field.
Peter Schulman has overall managerial responsibility for the administrative work of the Positive Psychology Center. He supervises a staff of five project coordinators, a project manager, plus a data analyst, and he provides support to the full-time staff, post docs, grad students, and numerous part-time student workers who participate in the activities of the Center.

Here’s what Peter’s staff said about working with him:

• Peter is a kind, generous mentor with an incredibly fine touch for the nuances of organizational interaction...I find myself able to make much better decisions because of his timely input.

• If we need tools to do the job, Peter makes sure we have them...He makes it clear every day that he wants each employee to be fulfilled, challenged, and contributing to Penn’s mission.

• Peter is, in every possible way, a model supervisor. He is unbelievably fair, incredibly supportive, and he inspires excellence in those around him through everything he does and is.
Maggie Krall supervises two program coordinators. They assist her in the administration of the MD-PhD program, five MD-Masters Programs, and multiple elective research programs for Perelman medical students. This includes student advising, programming, and enrichment activities grant and data management admissions and alumni tracking.

Here’s what Maggie’s staff said about working with her:

- Maggie is very deserving of this award. She is a pleasure to work for and makes me want to do my job better every day.

- She conducts herself with dignity, professionalism, good humor, generosity, enthusiasm, and compassion toward everyone…I look to Maggie as a role model for how I should conduct myself.

- Maggie provides feedback and advice in a respectful and constructive way…Her accessibility and positive attitude every time I need to connect with her sets her apart from other supervisors.